PROFILE

Archana Mittal belongs to the Indian Railway Service and has over twenty-five years of experience in various roles in Government of India (GoI) across diverse sectors, viz., transport sector, social sector and urban development sector. She was a part of the leadership team in the Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs, GoI for the national flagship schemes of urban poverty alleviation and Smart Cities Mission. She is an MBA from Indian Institute of Management, Ahmedabad and Master in Public Affairs (MPA) from University of California, Berkeley, USA.

Construction sector is vital for development, while being characterised by high levels of environmental and social impact. Sustainability reporting (SR) on material issues is therefore essential for the sector. The most recent concept of 'double materiality' which includes both financial materiality and impact materiality has been adopted by the European Union. Implications of double materiality in SR in construction sector are yet to be explored in India. Her PhD research aims to fill this gap.

PhD RESERACH

Title of PhD thesis: "Examining the implications of 'double materiality' for Sustainability Reporting: A case study of the construction sector in India".
