Call for Abstracts for the International Workshop on Environmental Justice Issues

Date: 18th February 2025, Wednesday (Hybrid Format)
Venue: TERI School of Advanced Studies

Last Date to submit the abstract: 30th January 2025
Selected abstracts will be intimated by 5th February 2025

Indian academicians, research scholars, policy makers, and practitioners working in the areas of environmental justice, environmental risks, climate justice issues, justice issues in the context of energy transition and other pressing human and social issues, including poverty, vulnerability, and justice issues persisting and emerging in the context India, are invited to submit a brief abstract of 150-200 words. Abstract shall, clearly define the problem being explored, state the study objectives, identify the methodology employed and mention the expected findings. The emphasis shall be on the policy and governance aspects, though studies using wide range of methods are welcome. Submissions should present evidence-based and actionable policy research that addresses the critical challenges of environmental issues. Selected abstracts will contribute to meaningful discussions and drive impactful policy solutions.

Selected abstracts will be invited to develop draft papers and present the same in the International workshop and will also get a chance to publish their work in the Special Issue on Indian Perspectives on Environmental Justice of Academics Stand Against Poverty (ASAP) journal (<https://www.journalasap.org/index.php/asap>) published at Yale University. A team of experts from Yale University and TERI SAS will be evaluating the abstracts/papers. There is no registration fee for the presentation in the Workshop and participation. However, all presenters/participants will have to manage their own travel and accommodation. Those who want to participate in the Workshop without presenting a paper, they are most welcome to join – either online or offline. However, they need to register themselves in the following link. All the presenters will be receiving a certificate of presentation.
