| Course description Public policy affects almost every aspect of one's daily life, but it cannot be understood without reference to policy-making processes, which refer to a series of decisions made by public actors. Learning more about public policy and the making of it covers the whole process of public decision-making. It also includes the feedback policymakers receive on their decisions. This course is designed to provide the students a brief, yet comprehensive, overview of the Public Policy processes including formulation, implementation, monitoring and evaluation, and key actors/institutions. The course comprises four modules: the first module sets the context for policymaking, which begins with discussing fundamental concepts related to public policy discipline; the second module focuses on approaches/models and determinants of policy formulation; the third includes the approaches/models and instruments of policy implementation, and a brief overview of the policy monitoring and evaluation issues; and the fourth module provides a background of public policy formulation and implementation in India along with a few case studies. | | | |
| Learning objectives: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • To introduce students to key concepts, elements, approaches/models, processes, scope, and dimensions specific to the public policy discipline. • To discuss the role of key institutions and actors in public policy processes. • To provide students with an overview of the public policy formulation and implementation in the Indian context. | | | |
